THE HARVEST HOME.

Thanksgiving in the Old Simple Days of England.

In the old simple days of England the harvest home was such a scene as Horace's friends might have expected to see at his Sabine farm. The grain last cut was brought home in its wagon, called the hock cart—surmounted by a figure formed of sheaf with gay dressings—suggesting a representation of the goddess Ceres, while a pipe and tabor went merrily sounding in front and the reapers tripped around in a hand in hand ring, singing:

"Harvest home, harvest home!
We have plowed, we have sowed,
We have reaped, we have mowed,
We have brought home every load, Hip, hip, hip, harvest home!"

In the evening of harvest home the supper took place in the barn or some other suitable place, the master and mistress generally presiding. This feast was always composed of substantial food with plenty of good ale.

There is a growing tendency at the present time to abolish these old harvest festivals and to substitute a festival for the whole parish, with services in the forenoon and a dinner afterward, followed by sports and games for the men and tea drinking for the women.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Thanksgiving Days in Hungary.

In Hungary Thanksgiving days or something analogous to them used to be common, but have now passed away except on rare occasions of national rejoicing. Then a horse race of a particularly exciting description takes the place that football occupies in the American observance of the real thing in the way of Thanksgiving celebrations.

The Thankful Mouse.

[A fable.]

It was a homely pussy cat,
Upon Thanksgiving morn,
As she watched a thankful little mouse
That ate an ear of corn.

"If I eat that thankful little mouse, How thankful he should be
When he has made a meal himself
To make a meal for me!"

"Then with his thanks for having fed Am his thanks for feeding me—
With all his thankfulness inside—How thankful I shall be!"

Then "mewed" the hungry pussy cat
Upon Thanksgiving day,
But the little mouse had overheard,
And declined (with thanks) to stay.
—Oliver Herford in Outlook.
